Soi Dog Foundation has pledged substantial financial assistance to two groups of rescued dogs now being housed at a makeshift shelter in Zhengzhou, China. The first rescue took place when over 600 dogs were saved from a butcher's truck by Chinese activists. The dogs were sick, injured, and terrified. They had almost certainly been destined for the Yulin dog meat festival.

18 hours. Finally, the dogs arrived at the safety of the Zhengzhou shelter, but their problems haven't ended there.

Already struggling to cope with over 600 dogs, the additional 209 now means the shelter is at breaking point. With inadequate facilities and limited supplies of food and medication, your help is desperately needed if hundreds of rescued dogs are to recover and survive. These innocent animals have been so horrifically let down by humans, we can't let them die now. Will you please donate now to help them?

Please take action so that rescued dogs can have a safe place to sleep, enough food to eat, and the vital medical treatment needed to save them. Your support will not only ensure these dogs get a second chance at life, but will further strengthen the growing campaign to end the Asian dog meat trade. Please help by donating now.
